

1. The Kentucky Autism Training Center representative, Laura Ferguson, observed in classrooms October 13 and 14 at Head Start and Kathryn Winn. Ms. Ferguson met with individual teachers to provide suggestions on strategies to help student with Autism achieve.
2. The Special Education professional Learning community had their second meeting October 15. The group has representatives from each of the schools. We discussed test scores, addressing specific behaviors, as well as legal issues Special Education faces.
3. The product ReadWrite Gold has been purchased as a district site license. This is a computer program that allows students to have text read on technology. The district plan is to fade the accommodation of having human readers for students. As student increase in age they should be reading on their own as much as possible. There will be a district wide training for teachers on Tuesday, October 27. At this time they will learn to use the product on a variety of technical platforms.
